POETRY

TOBACCO

My Mommy has a lighter
A cartoon of cigarettes too
She puts cancer to her lips
While I wait, playing in my room
As she inhales her chemical fix
I sit and wonder when she's coming in
The door opens, I yell "Mommy!"
But I know I'll never win
"Five more minutes," she says
Though I've heard that song before
I wish I could do something, anything
To make her love me more...

(Essay Competition)

Human rights are those rights which a person should have in order to be a human being. These are the rights which every person should enjoy to lead an honourable life as a human being. All individuals should enjoy these rights without any distinction of race, religion, caste, colour or sex. These laws have been given a proper place in the constitutions of almost all the democratic countries of the world. In the present day world, there is a lot of concern about the protection of human rights.

The United Nations on December 10th in the year 1948 adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and called upon the different member nations to assure all the human rights to their people. December 10th thus became a historic day in the annals of the World's history. At such this day, that is December 10th is therefore celebrated all over the world every year as Human Rights Day.

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights enumerates two sets of human rights. The first set of rights is civil and political rights which include right to freedom of speech, right to life and liberty, right to equality before law, right to have judicial remedy, right to move freely and right to vote or take part in the governance of one's country. The second set of rights is economic and social rights. These rights include right to work, right to have rest and leisure, right to have a good standard of living, right to education and right to have equal pay for equal work.

All the above rights are important in their own ways. The United Nations has taken a great deal of interest in abolition of discriminations against women. One of the most serious violations of human rights is the case of racial discrimination. South Africa for example, had for quite some time practised a policy called Apartheid. As a result the black people who were in majority there had no political rights.

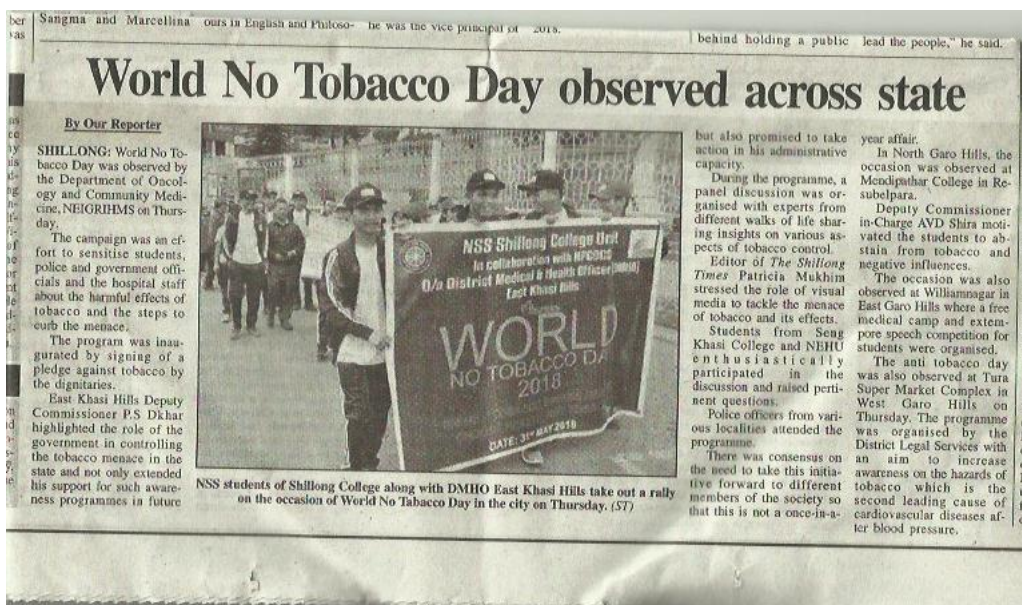

The Country was ruled by a minority régime of white. The United Nations passed resolutions to condemn its racist policy. Many countries including India break their diplomatic relations with South Africa. However, the practice of Apartheid did not last for long. After a long
